

“IMPACTING STUDENT LEARNING, ONE EDUCATOR AT A TIME”

The University of Phoenix College of Education is dedicated to the development and ongoing support of exceptional educators who will have a lasting and positive impact on their students and their communities.

Throughout Nevada, you can see the effects of our mission, to “impact student learning, one educator at a time.” Our alumni—both new and experienced teachers—dot the state’s school districts. And at our Las Vegas Campus, our Teacher Resource Center is truly helping all local educators make their own impact, with the assistance of helpful K-8 instructional materials, available for check out, access to equipment, and even paper and art supplies for a nominal charge.

Degree Programs for Future Teachers

Approved by the Nevada State Department of Education, our initial, teacher-preparation degree programs help new teachers lay a strong foundation for their futures. In many cases, you can choose between a program offered at one of our convenient, nearby locations, or one offered online. Either way, you’ll get a rich learning experience with all the support you need from enrollment to graduation—and beyond.

Initial, Teacher-Preparation Degree Programs:

- Bachelor of Science in Education/Elementary Education
- Master of Arts in Education/Elementary Education
- Master of Arts in Education/Secondary Education
- Master of Arts in Education/Special Education

No teaching experience or previous coursework is required for enrollment into any of our initial, teacher-preparation programs. Please note that while widely available, not all programs are offered online and on campus, so be sure to ask your enrollment advisor for more information when you call.

Advanced Degrees and Continuing Education

In addition to the initial programs, our Nevada locations also offer a wide variety of advanced degrees and continuing teacher education courses to help keep experienced educators on the leading edge of classroom management and current instruction practices. And now, our Master of Arts in Education/Administration and Supervision is state-approved to prepare experienced teachers to become principals.

We Share Your Passion for Education

Most of our faculty and staff are experienced educators themselves, and share a passion for learning and teaching. We know what it’s like to be in the classroom, working with students, parents, administrators and the community. We each use our own professional experience to play a significant role in the development and advancement of our students—here in Nevada and across the country.

College of Education Conceptual Framework

To achieve our goals as an institution of higher learning, we support a Conceptual Framework that is centered on the Educational Professional and seven themes that support the teaching profession:

- Advocating for Learning
- Valuing Diversity
- Collaborating with Educational Communities
- Integrating Technology
- Engaging in Reflective Practice
- Leading through Innovative Practices
- Practicing Professional
